Great persons have greater responsibility because common people follow them. So Shree Krishna urges that wise people should not perform any actions or make any utterances that lead the ignorant toward downfall.

Celebrating the Spirit of the Republic

The 77th Republic Day was celebrated at Muni Seva Ashram with pride and deep patriotic spirit. As the Tricolour soared high, young hearts stood united in respect and gratitude for the nation, creating a moment of collective joy and reverence.

May the enduring values of truth, unity, discipline, respect, and selfless service take firm root in these young minds, inspiring them to uphold the dignity of our Constitution and build a stronger, more compassionate Bharat.

The MSA Schools' Annual Sports Meet at the Maganpura Campus marked the joyful opening of Samanvay Utsav. The ceremonial lighting of the Samanvay Torch, followed by vibrant and disciplined student parades, filled the campus with colour, enthusiasm, and a festive spirit.

Held in the gracious presence of our Chairman Dr. Vikram Patel, school principals, esteemed dignitaries, and guests, the event brought together teachers, students, and ashramites as one cheering community. Watching our children march with confidence and smiling faces was a truly heartening experience.

Throughout the day, the playground resonated with applause and encouragement as students participated wholeheartedly, displaying true sportsmanship. Their determination, teamwork, and joy highlighted the vital role of sports in nurturing discipline, courage, self-belief, and holistic growth. The MSA children are indeed fortunate to learn, grow, and play in such open and inspiring surroundings.

Day 2 of Samanvay Utsav was vibrant and inspiring. The day began with a student exhibition showcasing creative work from various clubs such as Embroidery, Eco Club, Cooking, Entrepreneurship, Science, Robotics, and Art & Craft. The displays reflected imagination, skill, and dedication, earning heartfelt appreciation from guests and ashramites.

The highlight was seeing students confidently explain their creations, reflecting true learning and growth. The day culminated with the much-awaited Annual Function, where students captivated the audience with spirited performances, followed by prize distribution celebrating effort and excellence.

From 10–17 January, Eklavya School at Muni Seva Ashram hosted an international conference on Healing the Social. People came from India and other parts of the world—doctors, teachers, parents, students, and educators. They came with one shared concern: how society can heal through more conscious and responsible human beings.

Dr. Michaela Glöckler, physician and educator from Switzerland, guided the main conversations. Her work connects medicine, education, and self-knowledge. She reminded us that social healing cannot happen without individuals understanding themselves and taking responsibility for their thoughts and actions.

The days included talks, movement, quiet reflection, group discussions, and practical workshops. Learning was not about expertise, but participation. People listened, worked with their hands, shared meals, and learned from one another across differences.

Evenings were simple and cultural, with shared music, festivals, and traditions. Students of Eklavya volunteered throughout the event, and participants supported small social initiatives.

People returned home with questions rather than conclusions. The experience continues in everyday life—in classrooms, clinics, homes, and relationships.

With a vision to empower tribal students with skills for the future, an introductory training programme on Artificial Intelligence (AI) was successfully conducted at our Eklavya Model Residential School. The programme aimed to strengthen digital literacy and nurture future-ready competencies, enabling students to confidently engage with emerging technologies.

Through this initiative, students were introduced to the fundamental concepts of Artificial Intelligence and guided on its ethical and responsible application, thereby aligning classroom learning with the rapidly evolving technological landscape. The programme served as a meaningful step toward opening new horizons of learning and opportunity for students.

We extend our heartfelt gratitude to the Tribal Development Department, Chhota Udepur, for their visionary support and encouragement of this initiative, and to the Navgurukul Foundation for their invaluable academic and technical collaboration in bringing the programme to life. Such partnerships are instrumental in bridging the digital divide and advancing inclusive, equitable, and quality education for all.

Gyan Panchami - A Morning of Grace, Devotion and Patriotism

Our EMRS observed Gyan Panchami on the auspicious occasion of Vasant Panchami with devotion. Students offered prayers to Maa Saraswati, worshipped musical instruments, and presented a graceful devotional dance to “Ya Kundendu Tushar Haar Dhavala”.

On the occasion of the birth anniversary of Netaji Subhash Chandra Bose, Shardamandir Bakshipanch Shala paid heartfelt homage to this brave son of India, inspiring students with values of courage, service, and patriotism.

May Maa Saraswati's blessings continue to guide our students towards wisdom, creativity, and a lifelong pursuit of knowledge.

May Maa Saraswati's blessings continue to guide our students towards wisdom, creativity, and a lifelong pursuit of knowledge.

The Ashram was deeply honoured to host Prof. Chetan Singh Solanki, one of India's foremost climate action leaders, widely known as the 'Solar Man of India' and 'Solar Gandhi', for a special interactive session with our students. This was not merely a lecture, but a meaningful encounter—where young minds engaged with a life devoted to climate correction, sustainability, and ethical living.

Our students were fortunate to receive such exposure at a formative stage—listening firsthand to a visionary who chose purpose over position, resigning from IIT Bombay to dedicate his life to climate action. Prof. Solanki shared insights from his ongoing 11-year Energy Swaraj Yatra, a 100% solar-powered journey across India undertaken in a solar bus inspired by Gandhian ideals of simplicity and self-reliance. His lived example—travelling over 80,000 km and engaging millions in climate literacy—left a deep impression on our students.

He reminded students that climate change is not a distant issue, but a daily lifestyle choice, and that on a finite planet, consumption must be finite. Through personal experiences and reflections, he introduced the Finite Earth Movement (FEM), encouraging mindful living and responsible action.

For our students, the session became a lesson in values-based leadership, showing how knowledge, innovation, and compassion can work together for the greater good. Such interactions reaffirm the Ashram's commitment to holistic education—nurturing responsible, compassionate citizens.

The Ashram expresses heartfelt gratitude to Prof. Solanki for his inspiring presence. His visit reminds us that true education empowers one not only to succeed, but to serve and sustain life itself.

May our learning guide us toward simplicity, awareness, and seva—for caring for the Earth is our sacred responsibility.

SGGU has recently declared the results of Semester 4 and 5 of BSc. Nursing, and we are pleased to announce the institutional toppers from Muni Seva Ashram, Institute of Nursing.

For over a decade, Dhvanit's voice shaped Ahmedabad's mornings-so compelling that even music felt like a pause. A true synonym of Gujarati radio, Dhvanitbhai brought literary depth and lasting impact to radio jockeying, inspiring generations with his mastery of language and his many creative expressions.

We were privileged to welcome him to our Ashram recently. He visited various departments with keen interest, appreciated our organic, satvik meal grown on Ashram soil, and was especially drawn to the forest walk at our Vankuva campus. Guided by Dr. Vikram Patel, the walk became a quiet dialogue with nature-each tree and vine introduced with care, and received with childlike curiosity.

It was a visit rich in warmth, reflection, and shared moments-some of which we are delighted to share with you.

In the villages surrounding Muni Seva Ashram, transformation did not arrive with noise or slogans.

It arrived quietly—through education, values, and unwavering compassion.

Pujya Shree Anuben firmly believed that education is the most powerful instrument to heal society. Poverty, superstition, ignorance, disease, dowry, and addiction—she saw these not as isolated issues, but as shadows born of darkness. When she chose the sacred path of Seva, she lit a single, steady lamp to dispel that darkness: education rooted in values.

One such living example is Rajubhai Ramabhai Parmar from the nearby village of Dolapura. As he shared his journey, his eyes reflected deep gratitude and quiet pride—a story that carries the soul of this entire region.

As a child, Rajubhai was among the many little ones nurtured at Pujyaben's Ghodiyaghar (crèche). There, amid lullabies and gentle discipline, he learned something far greater than letters or numbers—he absorbed the values of honesty, dignity, and self-belief. Seeds sown with love took root and stayed with him for life.

Years later, as hardships mounted and poverty tightened its grip, survival became a daily struggle. With humility and hope, Rajubhai once again approached Pujya Shree Anuben for support.

She looked at him with compassion—and firmness.

“I will help you,” she said gently, “but not for free.”

Rajubhai placed whatever little he had into the daan peti. Pujyaben blessed him, gifted him one cow, and, more importantly, gave him a few powerful words of wisdom along with her ashirvaad.

That single cow became the turning point of his life.

Through hard work, integrity, and perseverance, that one cow grew into a herd of more than ten cows and buffaloes.

Today, Rajubhai earns a dignified livelihood and provides well for his family. All his children have received an education, breaking a cycle that once seemed unchangeable.

The story does not end there.

From Rajubhai's own family alone, four members now serve at Muni Seva Ashram, working in different departments and earning their livelihoods with self-respect.

Rajubhai's journey is not an exception.

It is one of hundreds of silent revolutions nurtured by the Ashram and guided by Pujya Shree Anuben's far-sighted vision.

This is the true impact of Seva through education—

where help does not create dependence, where charity builds character, and where a single blessing transforms generations.

In rural Gujarat, these are not just stories.

They are living testimonies of faith, effort, and enlightened compassion.

When Mrs. Ramkanya Bai Sisodiya arrived at Muni Seva Ashram's Kailash Cancer Hospital from Dhar, she came carrying fear—of her cervical cancer diagnosis, of treatment, and of the uncertainty ahead.

What she found here was compassion.

The hospital and the adjoining Atithi Mandir together became a space of healing—where care extended beyond medicine to include dignity, reassurance, and emotional support. She was treated not as a case, but as a human being.

After completing her treatment, Mrs. Sisodiya returned home. Before leaving, she fulfilled a silent prayer she had made on her first day—to offer new clothes to Radha-Krishnaji if she returned healed. It was an offering of gratitude, faith, and renewed life.

Stories like hers are made possible because of the generosity of our donors and well-wishers, who ensure that patients are never denied care due to fear, distance, or affordability.

Your support helps transform fear into hope—and treatment into healing.

Simultaneously, Dr. Ghanish Panjwani addressed students at our Institute of Nursing, highlighting cancer management from prevention to treatment. These sessions reaffirmed that awareness is the first and most powerful step in the fight against cancer.
